

CONROW-TESLA PSYCHICAL PREDICTOR #3

This machine is the 3rd version of Professor Conrow's Psychical Predictor Apparatus. A.D. Conrow's original work was an offshoot of a top secret project done at Niagara Falls, in the 1920's, to explore Tesla Technology associated with visual cloaking methods first tried during WWI. To my understanding, Professor Conrow's Experiment required the entire output of the massive Tesla/Westinghouse turbines at the Falls to produce the tremendously high-voltages necessary to make the prototype "invisibility cloak" apparatus operate effectively. Unfortunately, the extremely high voltages created massive levels of X-Ray radiation, whose effects were not fully understood at that time. However, with several injuries and the death of Conrow's wife notwithstanding, the X-Ray interactions created some of the very first Quantum Effects ever observed by scientists. Professor Conrow later utilized the data gathered from the quantum experiments and used it to build the first of his Psychical Predictor units. Using Prof. Conrow's original schematics, drawings and notes, this apparatus was assembled for you, the serious Steampunk Collector. It uses an original vintage rectifier tube, brass uprights, bakelite components, vintage telegraph wire and more modern parts where vintage components were not available. The machine is protected by a glass dome mounted on a solid wooden base, which can be removed for cleaning or adjustment of the control. To accommodate the internal electro-mechanism, the base of the unit has been thickened and enhanced.

To operate the unit, simply plug the Psychical Predictor into a standard 120VAC wall socket. The small power supply unit down-converts the 120VAC to 14.2VDC to match the output of the original 8 dry-cell power source that Conrow used on his lab bench. (The yellow lead-in cord is of the original-type to make the apparatus look old and true to the original.)

To use your Psychical Predictor, dim the lights in the room and assume a relaxed and seated position in front of it. Next, clear your mind and concentrate on a question that you wish answered by the machine's "spirit guide". Let your mind think the question and then ask it out loud, so the apparatus can actually hear the question. To receive the answer, simply sweep your finger over the top of the Phantom Oculus (green jewel). As you sweep your finger, it will change the reflection of the Green Light from the twin Iron Pyrite crystals to the Phantom Oculus. (Conrow called the light receiver inside the green-jeweled lens the "Phantom Oculus" because he had prepared it carefully from light-sensitive Cadmium Sulphide crystals. Since these CdS crystals directly converted photons into electrons, it was a Phantom Effect and was so named.) This back-scatter light is what Conrow felt was the secret to the unit's uncanny abilities. The three Jewel Lights on top of the Predictor will briefly flash as the electron-storm surges through them. When the electron level drops, one of the three lights will remain lit. This will indicate your answer. Please note that the Spirit operator associated with the unit will change from session to session. Sometimes you will be using an overly "positive" and helpful spirit, who will be glad to answer your questions positively, while at other times you may be conversing with a "negative" and unhelpful spirit who will try to avoid being very helpful with "Ask Later" responses. As each session begins, you will be able to quickly tell what type of cooperation you are getting and conduct your session accordingly. The Predictor Apparatus was used extensively by Conrow and his closest associates to answer their own questions about the future. However, after Conrow added a voice to his Predictor Apparatus, he began to have trouble with what he called "Mumblers". The next unit in the series was called the Spirit Electro-Mumbler, and if you are interested in learning more about Professor Conrow's theories, inventions, prototype apparatus and patent models, please visit www.victorianmachines.com or e-mail at victorianmachines@gmail.com. Thank you and enjoy your new Psychical Predictor Apparatus! Please Note: The Psychical Predictor Apparatus is for entertainment purposes only. Do not rely on its advice for any real-world applications or situations. No living person is responsible for the answers you receive, only yourself. All answers are for amusement purposes only. Thank you and enjoy your new unit!

CONROW-TESLA PSYCHICAL PREDICTOR #3

EXPERIMENTAL RECORD LOG & NOTES: